has successfully completed the online Specialization

Future Ready Company

For a company to stay relevant, the capacity to change inside has to match the rate of change outside. And that's a tall order in today's volatile and unpredictable business environment. This specialization from London Business School is designed to help you future-proof your company – to make sense of the biggest external changes underway and to provide you with practical advice on what you should do differently. In four complementary courses, we provide you with a wealth of up-to-date examples of what leading companies are doing, and we show how you can move forward with your own adaptation plans, whatever your level of seniority.
